From Your President

WITH SUMMER RAPIDLY APPROACHING, it’s time to relax, take a deep breath, and recharge your professional batteries for the next season of choral music making. One of the premier regional summer opportunities for professional development is our own Ohio Choral Directors Association Summer Conference. This has become an event for both the distinguished choral conductor and the rookie, where all can enjoy the fellowship of song, excitement of a session, and sharing a conversation with each other or one of our headliners. The highlight of the three-day conference will be three of the world’s finest choral clinicians.

Have you ever been Ephed? (pronounced “eefd”) I was first Ephed at the OCDA Summer Conference at Ohio University in the mid-90s. I have since been Ephed five additional times. There is nothing like it. It’s a powerful high and can be a life changing event. Eph Ehly, in my opinion, is the Vince Lombardi of our profession. He is the most passionate, talented and enthusiastic clinician of our time. A research article published in the American Choral Directors Journal named Eph Ehly “one of the most sought-after choral conductors/clinicians.” He has conducted more than 80 all-state choirs and more than 600 festival ensembles. As a conductor, author, lecturer, and clinician, he has appeared in 48 states, Canada, Brazil, Japan, Mexico, and several countries throughout Europe, and presented on more than 100 college and university campuses. Find out for yourself and attend the Summer Conference.

Jefferson Johnson has become an Ohio favorite and we are extremely pleased to have him back. He is Director of Choral Activities at the University of Kentucky where he conducts the University Chorale and Men’s Chorus. Johnson is also Music Director of the Lexington Singers, a 180-voice community chorus that annually performs major works with the Lexington Philharmonic Orchestra. Dr. Johnson’s recently released video Ready, Set, Sing is published by Santa Barbara Music Publishing (http://sbmp.com/DVD2.php?CatalogNumber=582). It has been featured at music educators’ conventions from Ohio to Hawaii. Johnson maintains an active schedule as an adjudicator and guest conductor for high school and collegiate choirs throughout the United States. He has conducted honor choruses in 30 states and has appeared as a featured clinician at ACDA or MENC conventions in more than twenty states.

Right in our own backyard is another premier choral clinician, Jody Kerchner. Kerchner is Professor of Music Education at the Oberlin Conservatory of Music where she is the secondary school music and choral music education specialist. I have not seen a more enthusiastic approach to pedagogy with a more consistent result. Her research interests include children's responses during music listening, choral music education, empathetic leadership, teacher identity development, assessment, and reflective thinking. She is co-author and co-editor of Musical Experience in Our Lives: Things We Learn and Meanings We Make (2009) and Prelude to Music Education (2002) and has contributed chapters in several research and pedagogy texts and articles in professional journals.

Our Children’s Honor Choir guest conductor is Fernando Malvar-Ruiz. He is currently the Litton-Lodal Music Director of The American Boychoir, leading that choir in over 100 performances throughout the United States each year and touring with them internationally. An experienced conductor, lecturer, clinician, and recognized expert in the adolescent male evolving voice, Malvar-Ruiz has guest conducted internationally at such venues as the Kodály Music Education Institute of Australia, the World Children’s Choir in Hong Kong, the Czech Republic, Bermuda, and the Des Moines International Children’s Choral Festival. Malvar-Ruiz also regularly conducts honor choirs and choral festivals throughout the United States for ACDA and OAKE regional and national conventions. The OCDA Children’s Honor Choir will present a concert on Wednesday afternoon. Rehearsals for this ensemble are open to conference attendees.

In addition to the above, there will be concerts by the Ohio Northern University Singers, Lakota West Chamber Singers, Broad Street Presbyterian Church choir, and the highly anticipated OCDA Summer Honor Choir. There will also be four choral reading sessions, and the All-Conference Party at Brio sponsored by Bob Rogers Travel.
Eph Ehly was named “one of the most sought-after choral conductors/clinicians in the United States” by Choral Journal. Retired as the long-time Director of Choral Activities at the Conservatory of Music, University of Missouri-Kansas City, Ehly has conducted hundreds of festival and All-State choirs around the country and across the world. Ehly is the recipient of numerous faculty grants and teaching awards and wrote the popular memoir Hogy's Journey, which details his teaching and conducting philosophies and rehearsal techniques.

Jefferson Johnson is Director of Choral Activities at the University of Kentucky. He is also the Music Director of the Lexington Singers, a 180-voice community chorus. Dr. Johnson’s recently released video Ready...Set...Sing! is published by Santa Barbara and has been featured at music educators’ conventions nationwide. In addition, Johnson maintains an active schedule as an adjudicator and guest conductor for high school and collegiate choirs throughout the United States. He has conducted honor choirs in 30 states and has appeared as a featured clinician at numerous ACDA or MENC conventions.

Jody L. Kerchner is Director of Music Education at the Oberlin Conservatory of Music where she is the secondary-school music and choral music education specialist. She is founder and conductor of the Oberlin College Women's Chorale. Prior to teaching at the collegiate level, Dr. Kerchner taught K-8 general and choral music in Swarthmore, PA and Winnetka, IL. She has served as guest conductor for honors choral festivals in OH, PA, VA, and GA. An active clinician, she has also presented nationally and internationally at conferences in North and South America, Asia, Africa, and Europe.

Fernando Malvar-Ruiz, conductor of this year's OCDA Children's Honor Choir, is the Litton-Lodal Music Director of The American Boychoir. He leads the choir annually in over one hundred performances throughout the United States and internationally. Widely sought after as a guest conductor, lecturer, clinician, and recognized expert in the adolescent male evolving voice, Malvar-Ruiz has guest conducted throughout the world. For 11 years, he instructed the summer Master's Program in Kodály at Capital University. He also regularly conducts honor choirs and choral festivals throughout the United States.

Enjoy three days of inspiring sessions designed especially for professional or aspiring choral conductors • Learn from dynamic choral clinicians • Receive $250 worth of free literature in reading sessions for all choirs • Hear performances by outstanding choirs, including the Children's Honor Choir and NEW High School Honor Choir • Otterbein University is conveniently located in Westerville, just north of Columbus •

Five Tips for a Successful Job Search

Dara Gillis, President Elect

As the school year draws to a close, many new college graduates will be seeking their first teaching jobs, and many experienced teachers may be looking to make a change. A job search can be daunting and somewhat frightening task. It can also be a very exciting and rewarding experience if approached with a solid plan and a positive attitude. The following suggestions are designed to assist in the process regardless of the experience of the candidate.

The most important tools in the search: professional organizations. ACDA and NAfME are the best investment in your career and obviously the first place to look for job listings. Check Web sites daily at this time of year for new postings. Jobs can be posted and filled in a very short period of time. Do not allow more than one or two days to go by without checking these sites for new postings. Maintaining membership in these organizations is a must, not a luxury. Do not let membership lapse because of budgetary concerns. Make whatever sacrifices necessary to keep membership current.

Attend professional conferences such as the upcoming OCDA Summer Conference at Otterbein University. This is the best place to network! Introduce yourself to as many people as possible. When practical, let them know you are seeking a new position. Perhaps you can attend the conference with a friend from another district or with an experienced teacher if you are seeking your first job. Ask them to introduce you to friends and colleagues so that you may help others associate your face and name. Later, your resume come across their desk, they may remember meeting you. Do not be shy about this process. In addition to a great tool for job seeking, you will gain many new friends!

Just because a district does not have a job posting listed does not mean there is no chance a job will become available. Do not hesitate to fill out applications, send resumes and even visit schools in your area or the locale of your search that do not yet show they have jobs available. Frequently, opportunities can arise quickly and without warning. Leaves of absence, spousal job transfers, etc., are sometimes not planned and can occur as late as August. If your application and resume are already on file, you are ahead of everyone else. Also, meeting administrators face to face is the best way to make an impression. Dress in your best interview attire and drop off a resume in person. A suggested script for this encounter might be: “I was in the area and thought I would stop by to introduce myself. I don’t want to take much of your time but will leave my resume with you, in case you should have any openings in the near future.” This is short and simple and can go a long way toward being remembered when positions arise. Occasionally, this will pay off in unexpected ways. I once got a job because I had done this with a principal in District A. A job later came open in District B. District A’s principal gave my materials to the superintendent of District B and said he had met me and was impressed. I got an interview before anyone else had time to realize the job was open, and had the position in less than a week.
Make your resume appealing, concise and uncluttered. K.I.S.S! (Keep it simple, sweetheart!). Long resumes are not read thoroughly and often are discarded quickly. Maximize the space you have and do your best to keep your resume to one page if you are applying for a public school position. One way to do this is to only provide references upon request. Always use bullets and short phrases, never full sentences.

Have a strong interview! Good interview candidates are those who are professional, prepared and relaxed. To prepare for interviews, practice interviewing with a friend or, if you are student teaching, with your cooperating teacher or even an administrator in the school where you are student teaching. Consider having a friend video-record a practice interview. You may see things you do well that will help build confidence. You may also find behaviors you didn't know you had that are distracting and may take away from your strength as a candidate. Remove vernacular speech from your language completely (“like”, “ya know”, kinda” etc.). Appearance is critical. Invest in looking really good. Wear a suit of classic style, not something overly trendy. A classic style can be worn forever. Ladies, be sure skirts are not too short nor heels too high. Men, be sure shirts are ironed. Both men and women should be sure shoes are polished and hair is neat, clean and well kept. Be positive about experiences you have had and open to new opportunities. Consider accepting extra responsibilities in coaching or advising student clubs. Be open to trying things you may not have thought you wanted. Very few people obtain their dream job in the first few years of teaching and this is not a job climate in which any of us can be excessively picky. At the conclusion of the interview, you may be asked if you have any questions. A suggested question might be “Are there any levy or bond issues to be voted on by the public in the coming year? If so, how will those events impact the district financially?” Answers to questions like this can be very helpful, especially if you are fortunate enough to have to choose between jobs.

There is no method for job searching that is guaranteed to be successful, and the above comments are only meant to be helpful suggestions. However, if applied, they can be very useful in limiting the anxieties that often accompany a job search and the interviews that follow. Best of luck to all candidates this spring and summer! ✓

Elementary Choir Festival

Mrs. Suzanne Walters, Elementary Repertoire and Standards Chair

On Saturday, February 16, 2013, the second annual OCDA Elementary Choir Festival took place at Jackson High School in Massillon. Six elementary/intermediate choirs participated: Perry Panthers Black and Gold Choirs from Pfeiffer Intermediate School in Perry Township, under the direction of Mrs. Linda Davis and Miss Ashley Lockhart; the Coventry Comets 6th Grade Choir from Coventry Middle School, under the direction of Mrs. Kerri Riley; the Greentown Notables from Greentown Intermediate School in North Canton, under the direction of Mrs. Jennifer Roden; the Bellevue Elementary Chorus from Bellevue Elementary School, under the direction of Mrs. Cindy Mira; and the Strausser Elementary Choir.
School Choir from Jackson Schools, under the direction of Mrs. Suzanne Walters.

Clinicians for the day were Mrs. Robyn Lana, founding artistic director of the Cincinnati Children’s Chorus; and Dr. Sandra Mathias, founder and director emeritus of the Columbus Children’s Chorus. Mr. Bill Zurkey, President of OCDA, gave a warm welcome to the choirs and the audience and presented plaques to the directors, and Mr. Tyler Young, OCDA board member, did a wonderful job of introducing each choir.

The groups all did a tremendous job performing literature of their choice, and each choir had the opportunity for a ten-minute on-stage clinic with one of the clinicians. Two groups of three choirs each sang a joint piece conducted by a clinician, entitled “A Psalm of Life.”

It was a fantastic day of inspiring performances from some of Ohio’s youngest singers! Watch the OCDA newsletter for announcements and information regarding the 2014 edition of the OCDA Elementary Choir Festival.

I believe that “in the best of all possible worlds” every high school program (and to a lesser extent middle school) should include a system of vocal study. I’ve developed such programs myself in three high school systems; all three are maintained to this day. If we accept that the vocal health and development of our students is one of our primary responsibilities, studio advancement should be offered by the time students reach high school. During the middle school years, instructors may wish to refer a small number of students to local teachers based upon the recognition of special aptitude. On the other hand, every middle school program will benefit from a significant focus on the unique age-related problems of vocal change in boys’ and girls’ voices. Assuring that the students make their way through this passage in a healthy way—and continue to sing at all (!)—should be the primary focus. This process may need involvement by resource persons in addition to the primary staff. No offense, anyone, but it truly helps if students of the middle school age are exposed to adult voices of their own gender.

The most challenging part of setting up a high school vocal advancement program is finding the right kind of vocal coaches, and helping students and parents to buy into the philosophy. (They will do so when they see results!) In order to succeed, the instructors must be understanding of age-specific vocal issues and be able to work well with students. The program must be viewed as affordable.
Care must be taken that each student feels valued and encouraged—the promotion of “stars” never fares well within the high school setting. I use the term “coaching” rather than “lessons” within my system for a reason. At the high school level, we must focus on health, breath, and slow development of range and tone, rather than repertoire, focus, placement, and tonal size as is often the case in studio. In many cases, a single academic year may center on the study of only one piece from the OMEA Solo and Ensemble list, in addition to lots of coaching in technique, diction, and literacy.

And now, here’s the crucial point, my colleagues. As directors, we must assume the role of principal vocal coach to our choirs. The warm-up period of each rehearsal is the student’s primary—often only—vocal lesson! Learn everything you can about the care and feeding of the voice, and make sure your focus is age-specific. Care for their voice like it is your own. Listen each day. Never “program” the warm-ups, repeating the same exercises every day. This achieves little other than “loosening” the voice, which is the first and least of the warm-up goals. In addition, repetitive warm-ups encourage the students to “tune out.” The choir must be familiar enough with a repertoire of warm-ups to be comfortable when singing them, but the constant expansion of their repertoire is healthy and exciting. Most warm-ups can be expanded, lengthened or made more challenging. Most importantly, plan the warm-up carefully and with a reason and goal for each exercise. Blindly singing through exercises is simply wasted time. I recommend charting your warm-up plans by the week. In this way, you can assure an interesting variety, while making sure that all the various aspects of choral skills are covered over the week. For example, Monday we study vowel focus, Tuesday we sing varied and canonic scales, Wednesday brings chord progressions with dynamics, Thursday the choir focuses on consonant exercise, and Friday a four-part sight-reading exercise is presented. In this way, a ten- to fifteen-minute warm-up period can truly reinforce a wide variety of choral development issues.

When performing, our students sing by muscle memory. It is our desire for them to be thinking about the expression of the musical content as they concertize. Only then can an aesthetic experience be shared between choir, director, and audience. My greatest frustration when adjudicating large group events is to hear the many choirs who have focused on all the details in the score, attending to notes, rhythms, dynamics, and harmonies, when it is clear that the voices are not prepared to sing any of these things well. It is in the studio and during the daily choral warm-up that our students teach their muscles to remember how to sing well. Truly, my friends, this is one of our most important duties, and one of the greatest gifts we can give to our students!

Thank you, OCDA, for the opportunity to serve on your Board. It is a privilege to work for an organization which has had a very positive impact in my life. Don’t miss the conferences! See you there.
Dear Colleagues,

The OCDA Board of Directors announces the inaugural OCDA High School Honor Men’s & Women’s Chorus. These Honor Choirs are designed to focus on literature specifically for (T)TBB & SSA(A) voices for incoming freshmen through graduating seniors. High School music teachers and community choir conductors are invited to select their finest young singers to participate. Teachers DO NOT NEED TO BE ACTIVE OCDA MEMBERS to recommend singers. Teacher recommendation forms are available on the OCDA website: www.ohiocda.org.

OCDA understands and respects time limitations of educators, and hopes that the teacher recommendation rather than recording and processing audition material will encourage more choral programs to take part in what is sure to be a wonderful experience. Please note that in order to better ensure balanced ensembles we are asking that you recommend two complete quartets for each group. More details can be found on the teacher recommendation form.

RD Mathey, professor emeritus from Bowling Green State University, and Jim Gallagher, professor emeritus from The Ohio State University will conduct the 2013 High School Men’s & Women’s Honor Chorus. OCDA is honored to have these two legends in Ohio choral music as the Guest Conductors for the 2013 & 2014 season. In a unique format the conductors will switch roles and direct the opposite ensemble the following year. This ensures that your returning students will get the opportunity to work with both of these Ohio choral masters.

The High School Men’s & Women’s Chorus Concert will be presented in Otterbein University’s Cowan Hall on Monday, June 17, at 7 pm.

Each student will receive a packet of music, lunch, dinner, and a concert t-shirt
Two tickets for parents are included in the participation fee.

All High School Men’s & Women’s Honor Chorus registrations must be postmarked by May 15, 2013.

In closing, without support from the teachers of Ohio, OCDA would not be able to offer these opportunities to the youth in our state. Please support this opportunity for your outstanding young singers in Ohio. If you do not have students in grades 9 - 12, please share this information with a colleague that does. Because OCDA is focused on what is best for the young vocal artists of Ohio, all teachers are invited to recommend their most talented young singers.

Thank you for supporting the 2013 High School Men’s & Women’s Honor Chorus,
